Pinera recaptures Chile presidency with resounding win

SANTIAGO (Reuters) - Conservative Sebastian Pinera won Chile's presidential election by a wider-than-forecast margin on Sunday, pledging to jump-start economic growth in the world's top copper exporter and opt for more business-friendly policies than his center-left predecessor.

Chile's electoral authority called the election for former president Pinera, who won 54.58 percent of votes compared with 45.42 percent for the center-left Alejandro Guillier, in a race that had been considered a toss-up.

In the end, the 68-year-old Pinera, who governed from 2010 to 2014, won more votes than any president since Chile's return to democracy in 1990. It was also the biggest ever loss for the center-left coalition that has dominated Chile's politics since the end of Augusto Pinochet's dictatorship.

Neither Pinera nor Guillier marked a dramatic shift from Chile's long-standing free-market economic model, but Pinera's victory underscores an increasing tilt to the right in South America following the rise of conservative leaders in Peru, Argentina and Brazil. He is due to be sworn in on March 11.

"Despite our great differences, there are large points of agreement," Pinera said of Guillier as his supporters waved Chilean flags in downtown Santiago. In the streets of Santiago's wealthy neighborhoods, where Pinera took some 90 percent of votes, residents blared their horns in support.

In his concession speech, Guillier called his nine-point loss a "harsh defeat" and urged his supporters to defend the progressive reforms of outgoing President Michelle Bachelet's second term.

ELECTION: Presidential candidate Sebastian Pinera gestures after winning the presidential election, in Santiago, Chile, Dec. 17. Ivan Alvarado/ Reuters

Pinera defeated Guillier, a former TV anchorman and current senator, by painting his policies as extreme in a country known for its moderation, and likening him to Venezuela's socialist President Nicolas Maduro. Guillier had championed Bachelet's agenda of reducing inequality by making education more affordable and overhauling the tax code.

The investor favorite in the $250 billion economy, Pinera's proposals are seen as pro mining in a country where copper is king. He has pledged support and stable funding for Chile's state-run miner Codelco and has promised to slash red tape which had bogged down projects under Bachelet.

The campaign exposed deepening rifts among Chile's once bedrock center-left, an opening Pinera leveraged to rally more centrist voters around his proposals to cut corporate taxes and double economic growth.

After a far leftist party made unexpected gains in November's first round, Pinera seized on the division, campaigning on a platform of scaling back and "perfecting" Bachelet's tax and labor laws.

Bachelet's policies were seen by many in the business community as crimping investment at a time slumping copper prices were weighing on the economy.

"I voted for him for the economy," said Jose Oyaneder, a 54-year-old salesman at campaign headquarters. "When he was president my (business) was quite good and I hope this time it's the same."

The results were tabulated in just over two hours after nearly 7 million Chileans cast ballots in a country of 17 million people where voting is not mandatory.

Dear Board Chairs –

As a new year approaches, it is time for NASBE to reconstitute our committees. States play a critical role in ensuring that we have wide representation on two critical committees: the Government Affairs Committee (GAC) and the Public Education Positions Committee (PEP). Dr. John Kelly, Chair of NASBE's Board of Directors, has appointed Jim Porter from Kansas to chair the GAC and Brooke Axiotis from Iowa to chair the PEP.

The Bylaws note that both these committees "shall be open to any member who wishes to serve on the Committee and has their board approval. If no board member is available, the board may appoint a member of NCSBEE or NCOSEA from that state. However, membership will be limited to one person per state."

Here are some of the activities we expect these two committees to undertake during 2018:

Government Affairs Committee (GAC) informs NASBE's decisions about federal policy, funding, and regulations, important to state boards. GAC members share issues percolating in their states and on the national stage. Activities for 2018 include:

- Shaping NASBE's advocacy on pending federal legislation such as the Higher Education Act (HEA), Career and Technical Education, the Fiscal Year 2019 Budget process, and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA).
- Discussing issues emerging in states and on the national stage where NASBE can amplify the voice of state boards of education.

- Informing NASBE guidance and feedback to the U.S. Department of Education on implementation of the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) and other issues.

Public Education Positions (PEP) Committee drafts NASBE's public education positions, ensuring they reflect diverse state contexts and are relevant to members. State members discuss important changes to keep the policy positions current and proactively draft new positions on critical education issues. Activities for 2018 include:

- Reviewing NASBE's position statements, recently adopted at the 2017 Delegate Assembly, so that they continue to reflect diverse state contexts and stay relevant to board members.
- Discussing emerging state and federal education issues and recommend whether NASBE should adopt new education positions.
- Developing a set of proposals for new position statements, amendments to existing positions, or archiving outdated positions to the full Delegate Assembly in November 2018.

Could you let NASBE know as soon as possible the name of the individuals who will be your designees on the PEP and the GAC? Send names to Abigail Potts (Abigail.potts@nasbe.org). A committee interest form is attached, or you can just email the names to Abby.

Thanks so much!

Best,

Kris
