R. Carman stated the former Administrator, Marlene Carbullido did order one random drug test which was negative. c. Chairperson read the stipulations, that included random drug test twice a year for two years. She brought this case up because she wanted to know if there is a tracking system. R. Weinberg stated we can talk to whoever comes in about a calendar system. Chair stated that would be Zennia Pecina. d. This LPN has met the requirements and has been issued her unrestricted license already. 2. GBNE-CO-18-009 a. R. Weinberg stated we have a certified mail received and the accusation looks complete but we don't have something that says in the file that this is what we sent. He discussed further on the next step and that would be a default judgement to impose the discipline. b. R. Carman mentioned she emailed this person to find out where she is at and this person responded that she is no longer interested in licensure from Guam. c. Chair will look into this case. 3. GBNE-CO-18-002 a. A. Varghese and B. Manzana are the assigned investigators.	D. 1. Closed. 2. Tabled 3. Tabled; ongoing pending Legal Counsel's review.

REGULAR SCHEDULED BOARD MEETING MINUTES
3:00 p.m., Thursday, April 11, 2019

	b. A. Varghese reported this nurse's Guam license will expire on September 30, 2019. c. There was a complaint from California Board of Nursing that an infant fell three feet while in her care. d. This individual was working at Guam Regional Medical City (GRMC) up until June 2017 when she moved off-island. e. A. Varghese stated there were several emails to this nurse but no response. f. Legal Counsel will review this case. 4. GBNE-CO-18-010 a. C. Tuquero and M. Bamba-Ada are the assigned investigators. b. Legal Counsel will review this case. 5. GBNE-CO-18-012 a. Ms. Jenny Mian was present today. b. A. Varghese and B. Manzana are the assigned investigators. c. Chairperson stated to Ms. Mian that she is present in regards to writing and signing prescriptions for Dr. Lim while she was off-island. B. Santos also mentioned to Ms. Mian that after A. Varghese and B. Manzana's investigation in cooperation with Legal Counsel R. Weinberg; they served Ms. Mian documents and awaiting her response. d. R. Weinberg stated he spoke to Ms. Mian on the phone today and she stated she understands the document now. e. R. Weinberg mentioned he explained to Ms. Mian the critical parts of the documents are: 1) Acknowledgement of admission that she had been writing prescriptions. 2) Terms of the discipline (R. Weinberg read the terms). f. R. Weinberg asked Ms. Mian if she is still working as a CNA (Certified Nurse Assistant) and she replied no. He also asked her what does she do there and she replied, billing, working at the front desk and answering the phone. g. R. Weinberg stated that if the board (other than the investigators) accepted the terms, then Ms. Mian and the Board can sign the document. h. Chairperson asked Ms. Mian if it is her intent to apply for recertification of her CNA from the Board and she replied yes. i. Former Chairperson Kevin Hitosis asked if the Board sent a letter to Dr. Lim's office. A. Varghese stated as part of the investigation, they interviewed Dr. Lim. j. A. Cruz asked Ms. Mian if she and Dr. Lim ever speak about a plan to prevent this problem again and Ms. Mian stated there is a covering doctor whenever Dr. Lim is off-island.	4. Tabled; ongoing pending Legal Counsel's review. 5. Tabled; voting is pending the review of the document and the new development.

	k. B. Manzana directly addressed Ms. Mian if she recalled a phone call when she called her and she said, Oh hi Brenda I'm busy writing prescriptions. B. Manzana stated Ms. Mian told her she thought she was her friend, Brenda from GRMC. Ms. Mian replied that she never said that. l. R. Weinberg stated this is a really serious charge. He mentioned that a Pharmacy board member who received the prescription. He stated this is very serious and he will probably suggest to the Nursing or Pharmacy board to refer this for prosecution. m. Chairperson is not comfortable in making a decision right now and requested to table for further review of new development; Board agreed. n. Ms. Mian asked how long and felt uncomfortable and felt a lot of pressure. She mentioned when the Police came to the clinic they did not have papers. Chair replied that this board never called the Police. She added that if this is not settled, she cannot concentrate with all her anxiety. o. R. Weinberg informed Ms. Mian the Board needs time to think about whether they want to accept the settlement, the new facts and her presentation before the Board. He informed her that the Board will get back to her. 6. GBNE-CO-18-016 a. A. Cruz and C. Tuquero are the assigned investigators. b. A. Cruz stated this is a travel nurse who was assigned patients and left without caring for them, therefore the accusation is abandonment. This nurse replied with a response three days ago stating she never assumed care for those patients and she told her clinical nurse supervisor and the rest of the staff that she does not feel comfortable on that floor because she never worked there before. She did not have access to the Pyxis machine used for dispensing medication and she informed her supervisor stating she won't accept the patients and that she was leaving. She also called her contracting agency that day to informed them that she resigned from GRMC and does not want to work there anymore. c. Chairperson asked if the investigators spoke to the supervisor. A. Cruz stated they will further investigate considering her response statement. 7. GBNE-CO-18-017 a. A. Cruz stated this is also an abandonment and moved back to Texas. b. A. Cruz stated a letter was drafted; R. Weinberg edited and R. Carman will finalize. c. R. Trump warns of stock crash if 2020 fails

EPIC STOCK MARKET CRASH: President Donald Trump waves after speaking in the Rose Garden at the White House on June 14 in Washington, D.C. Photos by Olivier Douliery/ Abaca Press/ Tribune News Service

WASHINGTON (Bloomberg) — President Donald Trump, gearing up for the official start of his 2020 campaign, warned that the U.S. would face an epic stock market crash if he's not reelected.

"If anyone but me takes over," Trump told his 61 million Twitter followers on Saturday, "there will be a Market Crash the likes of which has not been seen before!"

Trump officially starts his 2020 campaign on Tuesday with a rally in Orlando, Florida, and appears to be road-testing some of the themes he'll be touching on in the next 18 months, including stoking fear of a market meltdown. "Tuesday will be a Big Crowd and Big Day," he said in another tweet.

The president has claimed several times this year and as recently as Friday in a "Fox & Friends" interview that the U.S. stock market would be 5,000 to 10,000 points higher if the Federal Reserve hadn't raised interest rates four times in 2018.

He also tweeted in February that "had the opposition party" won in 2016, "the Stock Market would be down at least 10,000 points by now" — an unprovable assertion. And in January Trump suggested that if "you want to see a Stock Market Crash, Impeach Trump."

Research by Macrotrends shows the Dow Jones Industrial Average's performance so far in Trump's term has been middling compared with his predecessors, and trails the gains made under Democrats Barack Obama and Bill Clinton. It's a touch above the gains logged under Republicans Ronald Reagan and George H. W. Bush; George W. Bush had presided over a losing market at this point in his first term.

The benchmark S&P 500 index made a record high in early May before slipping in the face of Trump's stepped-up trade war with China. The more narrow DJIA, whose performance Trump likes to reference, last peaked more than eight months ago, on Oct. 3.

The Dow posted 71 record high closes in 2017, starting within a week of Trump's inauguration, and another 15 in 2018, helped by the passage of a Republican tax bill.

New Trump rules will remake insurance markets

NEW YORK (Tribune News Service) — President Donald Trump's attempt to transform American health insurance is almost complete.

Twenty months ago, frustrated after attempts to repeal Obamacare fell apart in the Republican-controlled Senate, Trump pledged to use executive power to do what Congress failed to legislate. An executive order set in motion regulations to promote "health care choice and competition across the United States."

On Thursday, the administration finished the last of three rules to do just that — advancing conservative policies without undoing the central framework established by the ACA.

Together, the changes have loosened Obama-era restrictions on short-term health plans that don't meet the Affordable Care Act's standards. They've permitted small employers to join together to buy lightly regulated coverage called association health plans. And the rule published this week gives employers, particularly small businesses, more flexibility to steer tax-exempt dollars to employees for health care.

MORE COVERAGE: President Donald Trump speaks during a June 14 event on expanding health coverage options for small businesses and workers in the Rose Garden at the White House in Washington, D.C.

The administrative actions are far short of repealing or replacing the Affordable Care Act, the law that expanded coverage to about 20 million people. Many of the ACA's elements remain largely intact, including billions of dollars in subsidies, strict standards for insurance plan design, and rules that protect people with preexisting medical conditions.

But Trump's agencies have "taken administrative steps to shift the health law quite significantly," said Larry Levitt, senior vice president for health reform at the Kaiser Family Foundation, a health research group.

The cumulative effect could erode a core principle of the ACA: ensuring that people can rely on their health insurance if they get sick, and to spread the costs of illness widely.

"It opens up an opportunity for healthy people to land with coverage that may be cheaper, but not necessarily as comprehensive," said Kevin Lucia, research professor at Center on Health Insurance Reforms at Georgetown University.

The rule completed this week expands the use of health reimbursement arrangements, or HRAs, which let employers use tax-exempt funds to help workers pay for medical expenses, such as a co-pay at a doctor's office. In the past, HRAs could be used only in combination with group health plans sponsored by the employers. Starting in 2020, companies can use HRAs to subsidize workers buying entire health plans on the individual market, instead of offering them a company plan.

The Trump administration estimates that the rule will have far-reaching effects in the long run. It projects that 800,000 employers, most with fewer than 20 workers, will eventually offer HRAs to help 11 million workers purchase individual insurance coverage by 2029.

That could have a profound effect on the many Americans who now get coverage through their jobs — sending them out to buy their own coverage instead.

"It has the potential to transform employer-provided health insurance in a major way," Levitt said in an email. If the projections are accurate, that would represent "a huge influx" of workers into the individual market governed by Obamacare rules.

Survey: Asian business confidence slides to 10-year low

By Sachin Ravikumar
Reuters

MUMBAI - Confidence among Asian companies in the June quarter fell to its lowest since the 2008-2009 financial crisis, as a U.S.-China trade war disrupts global supply chains and shows little sign of easing soon, a Thomson Reuters/INSEAD survey found.

The Thomson Reuters/INSEAD Asian Business Sentiment Index tracking companies' six-month outlook worsened in the three months ended June to 53, versus 63 in the previous two quarters.

A reading above 50 means optimistic respondents outnumbered pessimists, but worries about the threat of a prolonged trade war drove the index to its lowest since the June quarter of 2009, when the first edition of the survey was released.

"There was a big dip (in the index) three quarters ago, and we felt it was the uncertainty about the trade war and people were worried about the future," said Antonio Fatas, a Singapore-based economics professor at global business school INSEAD.

"We get a sense after four quarters of low numbers that now, it's not just uncertainty. This is a true slowdown in growth. We see activity declining - it's not just the expectation that activity will decline," Fatas added.

For a fourth straight quarter, survey participants cited the global trade war as the chief risk to business, followed by Brexit, and a slowdown in the Chinese economy.

The survey interviewed 95 companies in 11 Asia-Pacific countries that together contribute about a third of global gross domestic product and are home to 45% of the world's population.

It was conducted from May 31 to June 14.

Rising caution

The index staying above the neutral point of 50 suggests companies in the region are not expecting an imminent global recession, but the decade low indicates caution was rising as trade tensions mount.

The United States and China have been embroiled in a trade standoff since last year, marked by tit-for-tat import tariffs, as Washington looks to force Beijing to make changes to its business policies. Talks between the two to reach a detente ended last month without a deal.

Washington's move to put Huawei, the world's No. 2 maker of smartphones, on an export blacklist that bars U.S. companies from doing business with the Chinese firm without special approval further ratcheted up tensions.

Still, President Donald Trump has said that a deal "eventually" would be struck.

BNP Paribas, however, does not expect a resolution to the trade war this year, said Hong Kong-based Manishi Raychaudhuri, Asia-Pacific equity strategist at the banking group.

The trade tensions are hurting supply lines, especially that for higher-end smartphones, with many manufacturers looking to move production out of China and into countries such as Vietnam, Taiwan and Bangladesh, Raychaudhuri noted.

These changes, however, "can't be made overnight," he added.

U.S.-based Broadcom Inc., which makes radio-frequency chips used in Apple's iPhones and iPads, last week forecast a $2 billion hit to annual sales from the trade tensions and the U.S. ban on Huawei.

IHOP launches streamlined, affordable menu

By Lannie Walker
lannie@postguam.com

Richard Hart, the president and CEO of Apple Pacific Restaurant Group, is more of a behind-the-scenes type of guy, by his own admission. But when the company decided to refocus strategy at one of its restaurants, Hart felt he needed to be the one to take the lead in reaching out and letting the public know about the change.

Hart came to Guam 20 years ago and worked his way up from a server at Outback Steakhouse to the head of a company that runs several local chains including IHOP, Applebee's, Pieology and, most recently, Olive Garden.

Success is not new to Hart, but he is also willing to admit when his company could have done better.

Hart recently took a good, hard look at the IHOP location in Tamuning and decided change was needed.

"There is a certain level of expectation that people have when they walk in," he said of the restaurant. "There have been times when maybe that has not gone the way it's supposed to go."

Having opened six properties on Guam in the last five years – IHOP Tamuning turns 4 this summer – Hart is the first to admit that, sometimes, "things fall through the cracks."

'If I were a customer ...'

So, Hart decided to look at things the way a customer would. He slid into a booth, ordered a table of food and asked himself, "If I were a customer, what would this be worth to me?"

"I realized it wasn't worth what we were charging," he said. "I think it's important that we are honest about that."

Hart got out his figurative knife, started slashing prices and, "brought it back in line with our competition."

The company also reassessed what IHOP was serving, cutting 51 menu items and adding 12.

"We do have local items, but we have scaled them back to the items we feel customers were telling us they wanted," he said.

Doing what they do best

Hart said it is a matter of knowing who they are and doing what they do best, and "executing that properly for people that are coming in with their children, with their families."

Though Hart knows he is taking a risk, he said he is confident in his team and is hopeful customers will give them another chance to regain their trust.

"We are looking forward to people coming in and giving it a try," he said.

Report: Executions 'rampant' in Philippine drug war

MANILA (Reuters) – Impunity and unlawful killings continue unabated three years into the Philippines' war on drugs, with a pattern of executions under the guise of police sting operations and a state unwilling to investigate them, a report said on Monday.

The London-based Amnesty International in its report "They Just Kill" urged the United Nations Human Rights Council to approve a resolution calling for an investigation into the Philippines, where there was now a "perilous normalization" of illegal executions and police abuses.

A vote on the resolution by the 47-member council is expected later this week.

The exact number of dead in President Rodrigo Duterte's infamous war on drugs is impossible to independently verify, but many thousands have been killed, more than 6,000 of those during operations in which police said suspects were armed and had fought back.

The government has repeatedly rejected allegations that police have executed drug users and dealers and say victims' families can file legal cases against police.

Amnesty said the authorities used "deliberate obfuscation and misinformation" to make it impossible to monitor the full extent of killings, which overwhelmingly targeted poor and marginalized communities lacking the means or support to mount legal challenges against police.

Amnesty's report compiled in April focused on Bulacan province, the new epicenter of the crackdown, examining 27 killings there during 20 incidents, 18 of which were official police operations.

In three-quarters of incidents, those killed were on "watch lists" of people in communities with suspected use or involvement in drugs, Amnesty found.

It viewed those lists as unreliable and illegitimate "seeming to guide decisions about whom the police are targeting for arrest, or in some cases, to kill."

Hong Kong police arrest 6 at Kowloon protest

HONG KONG (Reuters) – Police arrested six people during a demonstration in one of Hong Kong's most popular tourist areas on Sunday, where thousands of protesters sought to raise awareness among mainland Chinese visitors about the political crisis that has rocked the city.

Protest organizers said 230,000 people marched through the streets of Kowloon, across the harbor from Hong Kong's Central business district, in the latest wave of demonstrations against an extradition bill that would allow people to be sent to mainland China to face trial.

Police put the number at 56,000 at its peak.

Chinese censors have worked hard to erase or block news of Hong Kong's biggest and most violent protests in decades amid fears they could inspire demonstrations on the mainland.

Hong Kong's embattled leader Carrie Lam suspended the extradition bill after violent protests last month when police fired rubber bullets and tear gas, but she has rejected calls to scrap it.
