TRAVEL (Trip) REPORT

Name of Traveler: Raymond Reyes Date: 11/8/19

Destination of Traveler: Las Vegas, Nevada

Purpose of Travel: Internal Affairs and Administrative Investigation

Dates of Travel: Oct . 21-25, 2019

1. Key highlight of the training, or conference or travel:

The key highlights of the training was learning from a highly experienced Instructor who presented a excellent training curriculum. The Public Agency Training Council is a highly recognized organization throughout the US, and employs highly educated instructors. Given the short time I was there, I've learned a huge amount information applicable to my current responsibilities, among other aspects relevant to my operations. In addition, the training provided me a more transparent outlook on approaching curtain situation, and has strengthen my confidence level in my duties.

2. Recommendations on the training, or conference, or travel for future attendance:

My recommendation for this training would be a yearly recurrent attendance to maintain the information and/or updates. My advise to future attendees will be to absorb as much information as possible, and to ask a lot of questions pertaining to your work environment.

3. Summary of benefits, derived by the traveler and by the airport as a result of the training, conference, or travel; and

The benefits of this training was a great insight of the Administrative Investigation process, and the protection of civil liabilities against the Authority. The benefits of this training provided me with a confidence in terms of dealing with complaints and Officers Misconduct. It also expounded on the ethical and standards of Law Enforcement Officers and the communities/complainants expectations. Parts of this pervasive instructional training was the Garrity Rights for Official Government Employees, and when the Garrity is applicable during an investigation. It also reinforces the importance of strong internal policies, especially for Police Departments.

4. Evidence of attendance at the training, conference, travel, or other event for which the travel was taken.

TRAVEL (Trip) REPORT

Name of Traveler: Elfrieda Koshiba Date: 11/05/2019

Destination of Traveler: Beijing, People's Republic of China (PRC)

Purpose of Travel: Attend the 2019 Aviation & Tourism (AT) @ China Forum as part of a join GIAA and GVB marketing effort

Dates of Travel: October 23-26, 2019

1. Key highlight of the training, or conference or travel:
The key highlight was participating in the forum and gaining a broader understanding of the global tourism market, how China fits in this picture and the importance of collaboration needed of airports and destinations (visitor bureaus) to attract air service for visitor markets. Of course the Chinese market is every destination/airport/airline's dream market in terms of its sheer size and revenue potential. The forum was able to shed valuable light on the Chinese traveler and their needs, expectations and how their own airports are meeting those demands. It helps us as airports understand these consumers and better prepare.

2. Recommendations on the training, or conference, or travel for future attendance:
I believe that a follow-up trip to the 2020 Aviation & Tourism (AT) @ China Forum for GIAA Management and Board with support from Marketing and is definitely recommended. It always helps to learn how others deal with similar challenges and networking is always an added plus for resource/info. sharing. Also, now as GIAA sets itself as a training venue for ACI we always need opportunity to promote our training venue.

3. Summary of benefits, derived by the traveler and by the airport as a result of the training, conference, or travel; and

This forum brings together key international players from airports, airlines and tourism offices providing valuable networking and best practices sharing, encouraging the sharing of ideas, challenges and solutions.
The Chinese outbound market remains the largest with 150M Chinese travelers in 2018, which was up 14.7% from 2017; 71.2M traveled to international destinations. With the continued travel market boom, as an airport, we should be looking at how we can attract new routes into China, air service with airlines and collaborative marketing and incentive packages with GVB.

4. Evidence of attendance at the training, conference, travel, or other event for which the travel was taken.

Please see the attached photos of our joint GIAA and GVB reps at the various events of the 2019 AT@China forum. Photos without me were taken by me.

TRAVEL (Trip) REPORT

Name of Traveler: Rolenda L. Faasuamalie, Airport Marketing Admin. Date: November 5, 2019

Destination of Traveler: Beijing, China

Purpose of Travel: Attendance and Participation @AT CHINA Forum

Dates of Travel: October 23 through 27, 2019

1. Key highlight of the training, or conference or travel:

This Forum was the first of its kind in China, combining the interests of Tourism Bureaus, Aviation Authorities, and Airlines in a forum specifically focused on tapping into the Chinese Market. It was particularly compelling in its approach to destination marketing, airport marketing and their joint sales and promotions initiatives to developing a route and establishing a viable and sustainable airline partnership. As was very much heightened throughout the Forum, the joint approach is the most practical and impactful to influence Chinese executives and travellers who are technologically savvy and practice self developed itineraries based on social media activity and consistent with their top reasons in choosing a destination. It was an amazing conference with participants from Europe, China, Middle East, Australia, New Zealand, Guam, Portugal, Uk, etc.

2. Recommendations on the training, or conference, or travel for future attendance:

I believe the Airport and the Guam Visitors Bureau adopt an air service strategy that aligns with and supports initiatives for sustainable economic benefit for the Airport and the island of Guam. This forum brings to the forefront the importance of engaged discussions, and possible incorporation of investment bodies (Chamber of Commerce, Guam Hotel & Restaurant Association) at the table in developing a comprehensive Guam strategy. It also proved that joint GVB/GIAA trade mission(s) to our key travel markets is a vital partnership for airline meetings.

3. Summary of benefits, derived by the traveler and by the airport as a result of the training, conference, or travel; and

Their was much validation to my belief and practice of compiling historical data to develop and present a good market case when approaching airlines and airport authorities to develop a route or increase frequency. The only thing that sets Guam apart is its unique story and opportunity to tap unyielded markets (especially in Asia, and in certain parts of China) in its infancy stage as they emerge as middle class economies and emerge as a travel market. It also featured speakers who expect different stories from Airports and national tourism bureaus as they are two separate legs that form the tripod of air service with an airline and an origination/destination. Social media is a key factor in travel choices. Guam has got to be represented in these forums if it plans to develop its services and tourism based economy. There was a diverse range of airport and tourism representatives. I identified with Portugal and Alaska. In regard to Portugal, I feel Guam can learn from their china service case , as visitor stays average 1.7 days for visitors from China vs. Guam's 3 days, and the multiple entry/ exit of air service from China based on key official relationships. Relative to Alaska, Guam too, is a US destination with natural resources to offer the urbanized Chinese visitor. While Visas are still required, Guam, like Alaska, can tap into the potential of attracting these vetted US visa holders to a natural sustainable vacation with the US western environment they are compelled to experience and show on social media feeds.

4. Evidence of attendance at the training, conference, travel, or other event for which the travel was taken.

Please see attached photos and collateral material for reference.

TRAVEL (Trip) REPORT

Name of Traveler: Vicente Naputi Date: 11/08/19

Destination of Traveler: San Francisco, California

Purpose of Travel: Airport Security Operations Training

Dates of Travel: Oct. 21-25, 2019

1. Key highlight of the training, or conference or travel:

The key highlights of the training was learning from an experienced instructor, as well as other airport leaders around the world. The course was intense and involved actual participation from every participant. The open discussion was another way to exploit how other airports around the world handle their day to day operations and security issues. The Airports Council International has a three course approach to obtain your diploma in Security Aviation, this will benefit myself as Chief of Airport Police and my command staff. I have more confidence in myself to handle all matters pertaining to aviation security issues.

2. Recommendations on the training, or conference, or travel for future attendance:

My recommendation is that all supervisors and above attend this course and pursue their diploma from ACI.

3. Summary of benefits, derived by the traveler and by the airport as a result of the training, conference, or travel; and

The benefits of this training allows for a more comprehensive approach to Aviation Security in developing the airport security program and the knowledge to use best practices for common issues all airports face in our security functions. This program also protects the Authority from civil liabilities and increases security awareness for everyone. ACI has a diploma program that will enhance the individuals skill and knowledge once completed. I would recommend this program to everyone who needs to have Aviation Security as part of their requirements.

4. Evidence of attendance at the training, conference, travel, or other event for which the travel was taken.

Name of Traveler: Fidel Q. Masga Date: 11/23/19

Destination of Traveler: San Francisco, California ( SFO )

Purpose of Travel: Attended the Airport Council International Conference

Dates of Travel: Oct. 21-25, 2019

1. Key highlight of the training, or conference or travel:

ACI Conference released several key products and Services to Promote Airport Excellence in the Areas of Security, Operations, Facilitation, and Services, and Customer Experience. The Overall aim is to help ACI member airports address current and emerging issues, offering ACI Best Practices, and to Contribute to the Sustainable Growth of the Industry.

2. Recommendations on the training, or conference, or travel for future attendance:

The course was a great experience and was a worthwhile investment. It provided opportunity for attendees to network with Industry colleagues, and meet with the keynote speaker. A valuable educational session, and gained industry knowledge. Benefiicial for GIAA, promotes growth and new ideas.

3. Summary of benefits, derived by the traveler and by the airport as a result of the training, conference, or travel; and

Learned new ideas and approaches to be more Effective and Efficient at work, and a more comprehensive approach to Aviation Security in developing the Airport Security Program and the knowledge application on utilizing better practices, for common issues world wide Airports face in our Security Functions. ACI offers a diploma program which would further knowledge enrichment/enhancement to participants. Also, it afforded me the opportunity to mix and mingle, formed new relationships and strengthen existing ones.

Name of Traveler: ANTONIO O. LANIOG JR. Date: 11/8/19

Destination of Traveler: SEATTLE, WASHINGTON

Purpose of Travel: Attend AaAE/ACI-NA Airport Noise Conference

Dates of Travel: 27NOV-31NOV, 2019

1. Key highlight of the training, or conference or travel:

   Understanding community annoyance, tools for discussing noise, FAA Updates, Community Participation Processes that are effective, responsive and civil, and implementation implications for urban air mobility/unmanned aerial systems.

2. Recommendations on the training, or conference, or travel for future attendance:

   Conference was very well planned and executed. Guest speakers were highly versed in their area of expertise. I think no recommendations are needed.

3. Summary of benefits, derived by the traveler and by the airport as a result of the training, conference, or travel; and

   Noise is amongst the most common community complaint regarding aircraft operations associated with an airport. Transparency is not only providing data to stakeholders but rather providing it in a manner that is easily understood. Designing Participation Processes that are Effective, Responsive, and Civil. Stages of Collaborative Decision Making: Assessment and Planning, Organization, Education, Negotiation and Resolution, and Implementation. MEMORANDUM

TO: Brian Bamba
Chairman

FROM: John Rios
Comptroller

SUBJECT: Trip Report to Makati, Phillippines TA 20-11-15; with Deputy Executive Manager John Quinata

Purpose and Nature of Travel:

Attend the annual Pacific Regional Investment Conference (PRIC). The conference is envisioned to be the premier investment conference in the region. The first Conference was held on Guam in 2001 which was sponsored by well known investors such as Smith Barney, Atalanta Sosnoff, Davis Hamilton and Invesco to name a few. The keynote speaker was Fareed Zakaria who was editor of Newsweek International, Managing editor Foreign Affairs, and an analyst for ABC News. He now writes a foreign affairs column for the New York Post and is the host of CNN's Fareed Zacharia GPS.

This year's conference provided a uniqueness that covered most current and fundamental understanding of regional specific issues in measuring performance investments. It also provided best practices and industry development opportunities with other fiduciaries around the region. Speakers included representatives from Raymond James, Fisher Investments and Atalanta Sosnoff to name a few.

Name of Traveler: Jean Arriola & Joseph G. Javellana Date: 12/11/19

Destination of Traveler: Honolulu, Hawaii

Purpose of Travel: FAA Conference - Civil Rights

Dates of Travel: 12/3/19 to 12/5/2019

1. Key highlight of the training, or conference or travel:

Key highlights of the FAA Civil Rights Conference include discussions on FAA-supported programs such as the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA); Disadvantage Business Enterprise (DBE); Airport Concessions Disadvantage Business Enterprise (ACDBE); and Title VI.

2. Recommendations on the training, or conference, or travel for future attendance:

We recommend GIAA management assign an airport employee to oversee a team who will handle these programs for the purpose of focusing in on compliance, monitoring, data collection and report writing.

3. Summary of benefits, derived by the traveler and by the airport as a result of the training, conference, or travel; and

Presentations and discussions (covering the above-highlighted subject matters) reinforced the civil rights programs that GIAA has already implemented (i.e SARA, Ambassador Program, posting of the Notice of Nondiscrimination, competitive procedures for awarding contracts, etc.). Likewise, the presentations and discussions allowed us to review other areas that may require additional fostering and improvement, as per FAA requirements (i.e. community outreach, Limited English Proficiency (LEP) proportions; Environmental Justice (EJ) effects, etc.

4. Evidence of attendance at the training, conference, travel, or other event for which the travel was taken.

Agenda attached. For more evidence, please refer to our respective Travel Expense Reports.

Name of Traveler: Doyon Ahn Morato Date: 12/17/19

Destination of Traveler: Seoul, Korea

Purpose of Travel: GVB Year End Reception, Jeju Air Meeting, US Ambassador Meeting

Dates of Travel: Nov 21-24, 2019

1. Key highlight of the training, or conference or travel:

Meeting U.S. Ambassador of South Korea Harry Harris, Gregory Briscoe Minister Counselor for Commercial Affairs and Shaun Kim, Senior Advisor to Ambassador

Meeting with Jeju Air CEO Seok Joo Lee

2. Recommendations on the training, or conference, or travel for future attendance:

I am glad that I requested to be briefed before the trip so I could be well -versed of the goal (Airport's perspective and GVB Air Services) for the private meetings and with airlines. Met with Rolenda (GIAA) and Coleen and Nadine (GVB).

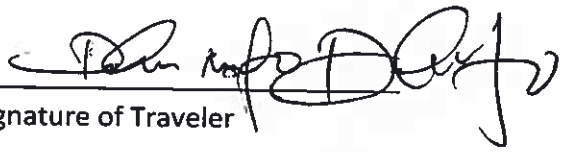

3. Summary of benefits, derived by the traveler and by the airport as a result of the training, conference, or travel; and

I believe my participation and representation of the Airport in Korea for these meetings was beneficial and productive. I gained a better understanding on how the collaboration of the Airport with GVB is important and effective in developing more travel, traffic and revenue for the Airport and Island. In the meeting with the Ambassador and Minister Counselor, I was able to speak of the Korean business investment and activity on Guam that they did not seem to be keenly aware of, Being Korean and speaking the language helped create a level of comfort and familiarity. I bridge able to speak the language and u learned directly how the efforts of the Airport and GVB can contributed in the private meetings with Jeju Air and the US Ambassador by
