Guampedia - Guam Preservation Trust Grant Application

Criterion 1: Introduction and Project Overview/ Summary

Modern Guam Rises from the Destruction of War: 1945 - 1970 (YEAR 2)

This grant application is for the second year of a five year grant plan. The entire project is as outlined here:

The Post War Era (1945-1950) and Guamanian Era (1950-1970) on Guam mark significant changes that shaped the island's present. After World War II, land was taken and villages were moved to accommodate new military bases, CHamorus fought harder for a larger degree of self-governance, and strongly asserted their agency against US Naval governance.

Once a civilian government was founded in 1950, CHamorus of Guam gained US citizenship and the Government of Guam was established. Later the island held its first popular gubernatorial election, and then an election for a Congressional representative. Guam's economy drastically changed from a subsistence style to a money economy. No longer were people living off the land and from the sea for their main source of food. Instead they held down jobs, buying food and clothing at stores. Ranches were still kept up but were not the main source of sustenance, bringing about a massive change in lifestyle and culture.

In order to document this formative period from both a historical and CHamoru centric perspective, which will help us understand the present, Guampedia intends to conduct first-hand interviews with local figures at the forefront of these political and social changes. A lot of the oral history documentation that has been done focuses on war experiences and not about the subsequent eras. In addition, much of these oral histories are a part of private collections that are not freely accessible. That is why this work is urgent, as many of these untold stories are in danger of being lost as elders are passing on. We plan to document these stories through video and audio recordings and with historic photos, to preserve a multi-dimensional view of these historic periods. In order to support the preservation of the indigenous language of Guam, Guampedia will conduct the interviews in CHamoru with informants that are native-born speakers whenever possible.

Document and book research will also be of importance. Through the course of the project, Guampedia will collaborate with the Richard F. Taitano's Micronesia Area Research Center at the University of Guam and other regional sources to support the oral histories. Guampedia will also continue to conduct outreach efforts for this project in an effort to identify and locate potential informants. This initiative will span a five-year period, during which different topics that encompass the rapid transformation of Guam's cultural landscape over this 25 year period will be academically documented through written entries and multimedia presentations of oral history.

The research materials and recorded oral history will be freely accessible through Guampedia and documented for future generations, for use in schools and in the community, for the longevity of Guam history. Accompanying lesson plans will also be produced for educators that will be aligned with the Department of Education's Curriculum Standards.

We expect that many reports from that era can also be digitized and e-published in Guampedia to include but not limited to the Guam Economic Annual Reports produced by the Guam Department of Commerce, planning documents, public speeches, petitions, etc.

To ensure Guampedia documents as much of Guam's cultural landscape during this time period, categories that will be explored will include social organizations, customs and traditions, religion, language, arts and literature, forms of government and economic systems.

Guampedia plans to keep in line with the CHamoru centric point of view of the Guam Museum's Permanent Exhibition the I Hinanaot'ta Exhibition as well. The topics in the I Hinanao'ta exhibit that are in this time period (1945-1970):

- Land taking and Displacement
- Liberation - July 21, 1941 to 1970
- From Subsistence to a Wage Based Economy
- The Rebuilding of Guam (1945-1950)
- The Beginning of Civil Rule
- Organic Act of Guam and Citizenship
- Taking a Stand for Justice
- Political Leaders: Appointed Governors, Legislators, First Elected Governors, Washington Delegate

Anticipated Highlights of the Project

- Architecture: The introduction of new ways of building. We will feature some unique buildings from these early times such as those designed by architect Richard Nuetra (Government House, Adelup, and FQ Sanchez school). Guampedia currently has entries on building methods including wood-tin, quonset, changes in construction style and hollow block.

- Government: The history of the Government of Guam agencies with the names and terms of directors. Guampedia currently has Guam Port Authority up to 1970 and Guam Memorial Hospital.

- Education: Guam's schools and the people they are named after. Guampedia currently has seven completed. Guampedia has entries about education up through WWII, but not for this era.

- Media: The beginnings of a free press - Newspapers, Magazines, Radio, Television histories. Guampedia currently has an entry on Communications and Transportation Advancement in the US Naval Era.

- Business: Many businesses on Guam today were established during this period. What were they and how did they get started? Guampedia currently has some entries on the Guam Chamber of Commerces pioneers but is missing quite a few. We will also create entries on the evolution of Guam's economy from agriculture to wage-earning, and provide the history of businesses from these eras.

- Economic System/Subsistence to Wage Base: Guampedia currently has entries up through WWII and just a few others - banking, tourism and Lifting of Security Clearance.

- Social and Political Organizations: Guampedia currently has entries on the political parties and an extensive section on CHamoru Efforts toward Self Determination which includes Efforts to Reunify the Marianas. We can add oral interviews to round these out.

- People: Guam's international community blossomed during this period - Filipinos, Chinese, Americans, Japanese, Koreans and even a few Indians came to Guam to start businesses. They opened schools, established churches and organized events that helped to shape the Guam of today. Guampedia currently has entries on Filipinos.

- Guam's Capital City: The story of re-creation of Hagåtña after World War II, looking at what was lost and what was gained. We'll tell the story of how several US Congressmen had streets named after them in Hagåtña (O'Brien Dr. etc).

Plan of Action

Year 1 - Speak with elders and resource review. Outcome by the end of Year 1 - Oral history interviews, resource compilation and a solid list of entries and content for Guampedia.

Year 2 - 15 new written entries and some oral history interviews for Guampedia, to include accompanying media (videos, photos, digitized documents when appropriate).

Year 3 - 15 new written entries and some oral history interviews for Guampedia, to include accompanying media (videos, photos, digitized documents when appropriate).

Year 4 - 15 new written entries and some oral history interviews for Guampedia, to include accompanying media (videos, photos, digitized documents when appropriate).

Year 5 - 15 new written entries and some oral history interviews for Guampedia, to include accompanying media (videos, photos, digitized documents when appropriate) and lesson plans for primary and secondary levels.

Criterion 2: Need for Assistance

Guampedia recently surveyed its users to see what their priorities were for adding new content to Guampedia, collecting 130 responses in 5 days. Additionally we use the "Contact Us" feature in Guampedia to allow users to tell us what they are seeking. People call our office to ask for information as well. We used these responses to help us develop this project.

A recent survey by the UOG CHamoru Studies program, too showed that the students need more resources particularly to listen to CHamoru conversations. Oral history and CHamoru perspectives are lacking for student research.

This application fits into GPT's strategic plan in two areas:

- Resources, technology, research and development - Educational materials on Guam's history including prehistory for schools. This project would further the Guam Preservation Trust strategic plan under its "Resources, Technology, Research and Development" goal to create educational materials on Guam's history for schools. Guampedia will be able to create more entries under two different eras, with important information about the history of Government of Guam — and how CHamorus formed their own government (based off the Naval structure)

- Community-based projects - Post War Oral Histories Project; Political Development, Social, etc. This project fits as a "Community-based project" under the Guam Preservation Trust strategic plan, documenting post-war oral history, and political and social development. Through interviewing people who lived during these eras and recording their oral history, this helps fulfill the Guam Preservation Trust's goal of recording these stories and developments in history. The project will include entries on notable community figures, and what life was like during this period.

This project also falls under multiple Guam Preservation Trust grant programs:

Archival Research: The project focuses on broad patterns of events significant in Guam's history, as outlined under GPT's Archival program. Guampedia research will contribute to entries to show how the island changed after World War II, including land ownership, a shift from agricultural to wage economy, and building the Government of Guam. The research materials and recorded oral history will contribute to Guampedia as a valuable online resource on Guam and CHamoru history. The period from 1945 to 1970 will be historically documented for future generations.

Architectural History: The project will include architectural research on historic structures on Guam from this time frame. One of the proposed highlights of this project is to show changes to architecture with the introduction of new ways of building. We will feature some unique buildings from these early times, including those designed by architect Richard Nuetra (Government House, Adelup, and FQ Sanchez school). Information on these architectural facets of Guam history is not accessible online for the general public. This project will create new resources and online documentation of Guam architectural practices and influences during the set era.

Miscellaneous: Under this Guam Preservation Trust grant program, a proposal submitted must have strong justification as to how it advances the agency, and how it will provide a public benefit worth the costs proposed. This project is aligned with GPT's vision of historic preservation as a public responsibility through education, fostering cooperation and advocacy that connect to Guam's cultural heritage. It also supports GPT's mission to preserve and protect Guam's historic sites, culture, and perspectives for the benefit of the community and our future.

This project supports four of GPT's mandates that focus on this time period:

- Architectural and archeological history and documentation of historic structures and sites;
- Ethnography and Oral History
- Archival research and investigations for locating, recording and protecting sites of historic or prehistoric interest of value;
- And to support other activities directly related to increasing the public appreciation of, and benefit from historic places including public interpretation and presentation as the research Guampedia conducts can be used for interpretation.

Statement of the organization's mission and a concise summary of its long range goals.

Guampedia, Guam's online encyclopedia, seeks to take Guam's citizens and the worldwide community on an educational journey, using the World Wide Web, providing comprehensive entries and media (i.e. photographs, audio and visual components) on our island's rich history and culture.

Guampedia is a project of both principle and substance – principle in its determination to accurately describe and place the island's vast heritage in the local and global consciousness – and substance in the execution of strategies to create an online encyclopedia of quality and integrity through which current and future generations can document the multi-faceted history and culture of Guam.

Mission Statement
We believe that the future of our island is dependent upon an informed, educated citizenry. Scarce resources result in limited opportunities to learn and understand about Guam's unique history, culture, environment and present-day society. Guampedia exists to provide a comprehensive, accessible resource about Guam that will educate the global community and increase opportunities for the enlightenment of our people, allowing us to chart our destiny.

The ultimate goal of Guampedia is to create a valuable information and research tool that combines bibliographies, databases, descriptive entries, essays, online access to primary source material, interpretive essays, curriculum and lesson plans, biographies, historical maps, illustrations, photographs and broadcast media. Users are provided with a vast array of information covering a wide range of topics about Guam, all of which are written by scholars or experts in the field, peer reviewed, fact checked and edited through a rigorous editorial process.

Guampedia is intended to spur critical thinking about the island and its people. The primary objectives of the Guampedia project revolve around preservation, access and education:

- Preservation of Guam's history and culture through conveyance of important events and people in encyclopedia entries;

- Access to text with photographs and the knowledgeable voices of elders who have lived through these events; and

- Education through locally produced and focused material on the island's heritage for schoolchildren on Guam and for a worldwide public in order to strengthen global knowledge of Guam through accurate and well-written texts, and in most cases, locally-produced short films or documentaries.

Criterion 3: Project Approach

Guampedia, an ongoing project since 2002, is slowly filling in Guam's history in our online database as our limited resources allow. To add information and entries to Guampedia online, the local academic community has defined eras of Guam history for us to follow. Based on the collective guidance from Guam history scholars, Guampedia has worked on expanding the ancient Guam section, with funding from the Guam Preservation Trust. Guampedia has also created extensive entries for the US Naval era, with funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Guampedia wants to develop these sections of history next, from 1945 to 1970. It is imperative we work on these eras as soon as possible, because there are still members of the community alive who know this history intimately — but they are elderly, and we need to record their stories before they die and make them freely accessible.

Through online surveys Guampedia has conducted, and conversations and telephone calls to our office, we have learned people in the community want information on this period in history. Information on these eras is not easily attainable by the general public, so creating this resource would be helpful for educators, students, the community at large, and those living abroad.

Criterion 4: Organizational Capacity

Guampedia.com is a community project that highlights the unique history of Guam and the CHamoru heritage of the Mariana Islands. Through peer-reviewed entries and accompanying media, Guampedia provides an important educational and informational resource for Guam teachers and students, for CHamorus living away from the Marianas, for visitors, and for those who want a richer understanding of the island and its people.

Guampedia is the first project of its kind for Guam - created by the Guam Humanities Council in 2002, with grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the US Department of Interior. It was launched in 2008 with the first 350 entries. In 2009, Guampedia left the Humanities Council and became its own registered nonprofit and an affiliate program of the University of Guam's Richard F. Taitano Micronesian Area Research Center (MARC). The Guampedia office is located at House No. 3, Dean's Circle, University of Guam, Mangilao.

Operations are funded by a legislative appropriation stemming from Guam's Hotel Occupancy Tax, with new content development funded by grants from the Guam Preservation Trust, Guam Council on the Arts & Humanities and other local sources.

Guampedia partners with many other community organizations, including the Department of CHamoru Affairs, the Guam Museum, the Guam Visitors Bureau and the Guam Department of Parks and Recreation's Division of Historic Resources.

Currently, Guampedia has more than 1,200 entries, 3,500 photographs, numerous video and audio clips and dozens of e-publications. More than 150 people have been involved in this project to date. It is an ongoing and dynamic project and is updated and added to regularly as events unfold and technology allows.

Since 2014, Guampedia has consistently maintained about 25,000 unique visits per month. In 2018 Guampedia consistently maintained more than 50,000 unique visits per month, reaching about 80,000 visitors per month four times. About 50% of visitors are from the US mainland, with 30% from Guam and the other 20% from the Northern Marianas, Philippines, Japan, South Korea and other places worldwide, as far as the United Kingdom.

In 2019, Guampedia was officially endorsed by the Guam Education Board as an educational resource in teaching Guam history and culture for the Department of Education's public school system.

Nathalie Pereda, has served as Guampedia's media editor since January 2007. She is responsible for managing Guampedia's media database, which includes photos, drawings, maps, charts, video and audio. Nathalie Pereda earned a BFA in material studies with an emphasis on metal and wood design from Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, Virginia awarded in 2006. Pereda has been a metal artist since 2004 and her work mainly consists of small to medium scale sculptures and jewelry. She creates ifil wood jewelry for sale and exhibition at Guinahan Chamoru shop. She is the first female student with an apprenticeship under Joaquin "Tun Jack" Lujan, Guam's master blacksmith and recipient of the prestigious National Heritage Fellowship Award. Pereda continues to learn traditional metal working techniques in order to make the tools that were once necessary for hunting and survival on Guam's early farms. Pereda is also a volunteer for Inadahen Lina'la Kotturan Chamoru, Inc., a non- profit organization which aims to preserve and promote the CHamoru culture and is working to build a cultural center for local artists, craftsmen and serujanos/serujanas (traditional CHamoru healers).

Lazaro Quinata is a Sociology major and CHamoru Studies minor at the University of Guam. He has contributed and collaborated with Guampedia in a professional capacity multiple times over the past four years and officially joined the Guampedia team as Media Production and Research Assistant in November 2018. Quinata has represented Guam in the National History Day Competition in the documentary category for the majority of his middle and high school career, garnering third place nationwide in 2015 with his group entry titled, "The 9th Guam Congress: Catalyzing Change, Revolutionizing Politics." Quinata has been advocating for the practice and preservation of CHamoru culture. He has worked closely with the Guam Preservation Trust, Humatak Community Foundation, and University of Guam's CHamoru Club, Mañe'lon Marianas, on a variety of projects and events aimed at the promotion of the culture locally and abroad.

Guampedia's financial position is healthy with three regular sources of income - an annual government of Guam appropriation, contract work within the community and sales of our book "101 Amazing Facts," "Famalaon Guahan: Women In Guam History" and other items in our online giftshop.

Guampedia began receiving an appropriation in FY2010 drawn from the Tourist Attraction Fund. Initially it was $140,000 a year but was raised to $200,000 in FY2012 and has been consistent each year.

Additionally, Guampedia has developed a global network of academic support for our work over the many years of research and publishing. Our media editor, Nathalie Pereda, is perhaps one of the most knowledgeable people for historic photographs about Guam.

Criteria 5: Project Impact and Evaluation

Impact of project:

- Production of freely accessible on-line resources of written and multi-media entries for this 25 year time period.
- Provides students and researchers scholarly resources on topics during this time period.

•Create opportunities for students, organizations and researchers to produce research projects and program presentations in community-based activities and programs such as Guam History Day, CHamoru Cultural Heritage Program with Department of Education, and projects and forums on history and cultural heritage.

Evaluation:

- At the end of the first year of this project, Guampedia will survey scholars, educators and researchers to evaluate the list of categories and topics produced.
- At the end of the subsequent years (second through fifth) Guampedia's google analytics report will determine the access traffic to these entries.
- Guampedia also uses the feedback mechanism within each entry "How Useful Was this Entry?" to evaluate its content.

MITIGATIONS

- Stipulation IX: SHPO Liaison
  - 2011 PA calls for a Guam Liaison to provide assistance to SHPO to help offset some of the increased workload from Relocation projects
  - SHPO preferred a third party rather than a Navy employee
  - Camp Blaz established Cooperative Agreement with Colorado State University (CSU)
  - CSU Liaison came onboard with a 20 hour per week schedule at SHPO; executed Option Year 1 to increase hours to 40 hours per week. Attracting SOI-qualified individuals was difficult with part-time work schedule.
  - SHPO recently requested an SOI-qualified individual to serve within the new 12 month period of performance; Navy looking into modifying Cooperative Agreement and assigning SOI-qualified Navy archaeologist part-time to SHPO in the interim.
