FOREIGN CLAIMS SETTLEMENT COMMISSION
OF THE UNITED STATES
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20579

In the Matter of the Claim of 5 U.S.C. §552(b)(6) Under the Guam World War II Loyalty Recognition Act, Title XVII, Public Law 114-328	Claim No. GUAM-0322 Decision No. GUAM-0747

PROPOSED DECISION

Claimant brings this claim under the Guam World War II Loyalty Recognition Act for injuries suffered as a result of the occupation of Guam by Imperial Japanese military forces during World War II.[1] Sections 1704 and 1705 of the Act authorize the Commission to award compensation to "compensable Guam victims," defined as those individuals who (1) were alive on December 23, 2016, and (2) are determined to have suffered any of the following as a result of the attack and occupation of Guam by Imperial Japanese military forces during World War II, or incident to the liberation of Guam by United States military forces: rape, severe personal injury, personal injury, forced labor, forced march, internment, and hiding to evade internment.[2]

The Commission finds, based on the affidavit included with Claimant's claim form, and public records from the Social Security Administration and other government agencies, that Claimant was living on December 23, 2016, and that Claimant suffered a personal injury and/or was subjected to forced labor by Imperial Japanese forces during the invasion and occupation of Guam by Japan during World War II. Claimant's sworn statements are consistent with the public record and evidence in other claims filed in this claims program, which show that Imperial Japanese forces subjected thousands of Guamanians to forced labor during the occupation, and that many Guamanians suffered personal injuries.[3] Section 1705(b)(9) of the GLRA provides that the Commission "shall treat a claim that is accompanied by an affidavit of an individual that attests to all material facts required for establishing the eligibility of such individual for payment . . . as establishing a prima facie case of the eligibility of the individual for such payment without the need for further documentation, except as the Commission may otherwise require."[4] In the absence of rebutting evidence, Claimant's sworn statements averring that Claimant suffered one or more of these injuries are sufficient, under the statutorily promulgated standards, to establish Claimant's eligibility for compensation.[5]

A claimant who establishes a meritorious claim as a "compensable Guam victim" under Section 1704(a)(1)(B) of the GLRA for forced labor and/or personal injury but who neither asserts nor establishes any of the injuries set forth in Section 1704(c)(2)(A) (rape and severe personal injury) is entitled to a single payment of $12,000 and is not eligible for compensation for internment, hiding to evade internment, or forced march.[6] Claimant is thus entitled to a payment of $12,000.[7]

Pursuant to the GLRA, the Commission is required to deduct, from a payment made to a compensable Guam victim, amounts paid to such victim under the Guam Meritorious

Claims Act of 1945, Public Law 79-224,[8] before the date of the enactment of the GLRA.[9] The evidence in the record, however, does not show that the United States Government has provided Claimant any compensation under the 1945 Act. FOREIGN CLAIMS SETTLEMENT COMMISSION
OF THE UNITED STATES
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20579

In the Matter of the Claim of 5 U.S.C. §552(b)(6) Under the Guam World War II Loyalty Recognition Act, Title XVII, Public Law 114-328	Claim No. GUAM-0322 Decision No. GUAM-0747

PROPOSED DECISION

Claimant brings this claim under the Guam World War II Loyalty Recognition Act for injuries suffered as a result of the occupation of Guam by Imperial Japanese military forces during World War II.[1] Sections 1704 and 1705 of the Act authorize the Commission to award compensation to "compensable Guam victims," defined as those individuals who (1) were alive on December 23, 2016, and (2) are determined to have suffered any of the following as a result of the attack and occupation of Guam by Imperial Japanese military forces during World War II, or incident to the liberation of Guam by United States military forces: rape, severe personal injury, personal injury, forced labor, forced march, internment, and hiding to evade internment.[2]

The Commission finds, based on the affidavit included with Claimant's claim form, and public records from the Social Security Administration and other government agencies, that Claimant was living on December 23, 2016, and that Claimant suffered a personal injury and/or was subjected to forced labor by Imperial Japanese forces during the invasion and occupation of Guam by Japan during World War II. Claimant's sworn statements are consistent with the public record and evidence in other claims filed in this claims program, which show that Imperial Japanese forces subjected thousands of Guamanians to forced labor during the occupation, and that many Guamanians suffered personal injuries.[3] Section 1705(b)(9) of the GLRA provides that the Commission "shall treat a claim that is accompanied by an affidavit of an individual that attests to all material facts required for establishing the eligibility of such individual for payment . . . as establishing a prima facie case of the eligibility of the individual for such payment without the need for further documentation, except as the Commission may otherwise require."[4] In the absence of rebutting evidence, Claimant's sworn statements averring that Claimant suffered one or more of these injuries are sufficient, under the statutorily promulgated standards, to establish Claimant's eligibility for compensation.[5]

A claimant who establishes a meritorious claim as a "compensable Guam victim" under Section 1704(a)(1)(B) of the GLRA for forced labor and/or personal injury but who neither asserts nor establishes any of the injuries set forth in Section 1704(c)(2)(A) (rape and severe personal injury) is entitled to a single payment of $12,000 and is not eligible for compensation for internment, hiding to evade internment, or forced march.[6] Claimant is thus entitled to a payment of $12,000.[7]

Pursuant to the GLRA, the Commission is required to deduct, from a payment made to a compensable Guam victim, amounts paid to such victim under the Guam Meritorious

Claims Act of 1945, Public Law 79-224,[8] before the date of the enactment of the GLRA.[9] The evidence in the record, however, does not show that the United States Government has provided Claimant any compensation under the 1945 Act. Therefore, no deduction in payment will be made from Claimant's award.

In summary, Claimant is entitled to an award of $12,000. This amount constitutes the entirety of the compensation to which Claimant is entitled under the GLRA.[10] The Commission hereby enters the following award, which will be certified to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment under Section 1705 of the GLRA.[11]
